SCORES OF WOMEN, ANXIOUS TO LEARN MORE OF ART OF COOKERY, ARE GREATLY ENJOYING THE COURIER'S HOMEMAKERS' SCHOOL; ENDS TODAY

Twenty-Seven Bear Gifts Home From Second Day's Session

REFRESHMENTS SERVED

Numerous Gifts Also Await "Scholars" Today, As Do Also Fine Recipes

Scores of women of Bristol and outlying sections entered Mutual Aid Hall yesterday afternoon, each anxious to learn more of the art of cooking and home-making, and each just as anxious to carry home one of the prized gifts which Miss Vera A. Schneider, the lecturer-demonstrator, so generously bestowed.

And as the savory odors of the meats, and of the delicious spice cake permeated the hall on this second day of the Courier's Cooking and Homemakers' School, every woman did exactly what the dietitian, Miss Schneider, advised—concentrated on the particular dish that most appealed to them.

Twenty-seven women concentrated sufficiently, for they were the fortunate "scholars," and each proudly bore home either a bag of provisions, a goodie concocted by Miss Schneider, an order for a 25-pound bag of "Blue Coal," or one of many other things. And those "other things" included the appealing chocolate ice cake decked with whirled cream and marachino cherries, all encased in lady fingers; a tempting salmon barge; a fine sausage roll; six savory meat cakes each encased in a cabbage leaf; Mrs. Morrison's chocolate pudding all ready to be served; a nicely browned spice cake; a French cream tart, and a macaroni and frankfurter dish.

And it is safe to say that dozens of the women who listened attentively during the two-hour session used some of the recipes for their evening meal.

Some of the "scholars" knitted throughout the afternoon, keeping their hands as well as their brains busy as they watched the demonstrations. Some had brought their crocheting or tatting, while still others used their note books and pencils to advantage, for Miss Schneider gave many fine "pointers" as she proceeded with each task.

The minutes passed swiftly as numerous pairs of eyes watched the ingredients which at first appeared in boxes, in cans or in paper containers on the demonstration table, later appear in more tempting form. And upon each one was impressed the fact that the magic work can easily be accomplished by each home-maker in her own kitchen if the same high grade ingredients are used as are used in the Courier Cooking School.

Recipes by the score were carried home by the women, these being included in their programs and in pamphlets distributed throughout the audience. And from these left-overs will be made more tasty, delightful meat dishes will be concocted, attractive and healthful salads will be made, and vegetable recipes and cakes will be more numerous and more delicious.

Miss Schneider, in her inquiry yesterday to the woman present who had taken home a Feline's Virginia baked ham on the first day of the school, brought forth the reply that it was "marvelous."

Questions were forth-coming at the conclusion of the class as to the display of kitchen furniture on the stage arranged by Spencer & Sons; the electric ranges installed by Philadelphia Electric Company; the General Electric refrigerator placed by Robert Weik; as well as the small kitchen utensils used by Miss Schneider in her work, which came from Lit Brothers store, Philadelphia.

The final session of the Courier's cooking school, which it is expected will attract the largest group of the three days, will occur this afternoon. Session will be from two until four o'clock, and the gifts today will be just as numerous.

DEMOCRATS PUT TO IT TO FIND ENOUGH JOBS

Pressure Becoming Greater Every Day Upon The Leaders

MANY MAKE DEMANDS

By International News Service

HARRISBURG, Mar. 1.—(INS)—The trials and tribulations of the Democratic Administration in finding jobs for party workers brought about a curious situation in the Governor's office. . . A Republican who aided Gov. George H. Earle in his campaign last fall came up to the executive offices to find out why he hadn't been appointed to a $5,000 job for which he had been sponsored and expected to get. . . While waiting, a Democratic fraternity brother came in.

Conversation developed they were both waiting to find out why they had not yet been given jobs. . . Further conversation developed they both had been sponsored for the same position. . . Now, party leaders are hunting around for another $5,000 job to satisfy both. . . Names of the principals in the incident are "off the record."

It wasn't as unusual as it might seem that two friends hunting jobs should meet in the Governor's office these days. . . The executive reception room is filled with job-hunters from morning to night every day of the week. . . They are attracted by newspaper articles of "frings" of Republican personnel in various departments.

None of them seem to understand when they are told the dismissals to date have been jobs which the administration is abolishing for economy and for which there are to be no successors. . . This is one reason the administration is so chary in giving out names of persons who have been dismissed. . . The personnel office has given out no lists as yet. . . Department heads have admitted some dismissals. . . Others have been learned when payroll sheets cleared through the fiscal offices.

Echoes—Senator Leon C. Prince, Cumberland, who sponsored the abortive request that Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, resign his seat, is planning to be a congressional candidate next year. . . He is expected to seek the seat of Rep. Isaac Douchit representing the Dauphin-Cumberland-Lebanon district. . . Whether he will run as a Republican has political circles guessing in view of his remarks. . . Continued on Page Four

William Burns and Friends Enjoy Party On Anniversary

William Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burns, Jefferson avenue, was nine years old yesterday and in the evening entertained little friends at his home with games. Prizes were awarded to Geraldine Fenton, Geraldine Louder, Paul Armstrong, Emma Lou Neill and Norma Zaransac. Refreshments were served, table decorations being pink and white. Favors were pink baskets filled with candy. William received a number of gifts.

Other guests: James Fallon, Ralph Ratcliffe, Eugene Cordisco, Fred Culen, Rosemary Armstrong, Mrs. A. Zaransac, Mrs. Richard Crosby, Miss Margaret Burns, Sidney Popkin.

HITLER CLAIMS SAAR IN NAME OF NAZI-GERMANY

Enters Territory Like Mighty Caesar Returning Triumphant

MUCH REJOICING

By Pierre J. Hoss

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany, Mar. 1.—Like a mighty Caesar returning triumphant from the war, Reichsfuhrer Adolf Hitler swept into the Saar today and officially claimed this rich mining territory in the name of Nazi-Germany. He figuratively implanted the Swastika banner in the cold soil of the Saar a few hours after actual formalities of handing the region back to the Reich had been concluded.

Popular rejoicing reached its peak when the Chancellor, unannounced, drove through the streets at the head of a motor cavalcade.

Leading a squadron of 14 planes, the Chancellor flew to Mannheim and proceeded to the Saar by motor car. A detail of storm troopers was sent post haste from the Saarbruecken barracks to greet the Chancellor and along the broad highways crowds were lined to cheer him. Conservative estimates said no less than 50,000 persons, learning of Hitler's arrival, raced through the streets from various sections of Saarbruecken to join in the greeting. The air was rent with full-throated singing of Nazi songs and anthems. An impromptu parade of 190 storm troopers went through the streets packed tight with cheering humanity.

Peet Funeral Service To Be Held On Sunday

Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

Friends may call at the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street, Bristol, tomorrow evening. The body will be on view at the Bristol Presbyterian Church on Sunday from two to three o'clock.

Interment will be made in Bristol Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. William Huckleight, Trenton, N. J., spent a day this week with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jenks, Jefferson avenue.

WARNS MERCHANTS NOT TO STARVE NEWSPAPERS

Is Backbone of Community, Lansdale Publisher Declares

HOUSING PLAN UP

PERKASIE, Mar. 1.—Nearly seventy persons attended the fellowship dinner of the Perkassie Merchants' Association, in Benner's restaurant, Perkassie, Tuesday night, when Walter L. Sanborn, of Elm Terrace, publisher of The North Penn Reporter, addressed the group on town advertising.

In discussing ways to advertise a town, Mr. Sanborn drew attention to the fact that each and every city and town has its own characteristics—the legend or background which grows up with its development.

It may be geographical, as the "Windy City" applied to Chicago, or a characteristic of the people—real or imaginary—such as implied in "Cultured Boston." Then again it may be based on the product for which that town is most noted—cigars or clothing or what not.

But these legends do develop and one of the best ways to advertise a town is through them—to bring about the association in the public mind of a given town with a given legend. For that reason, the speaker said, each town should have its own legend. . . Continued on Page Three

FAREWELL BANQUET IS TENDERED PASTOR, WIFE

The Rev. and Mrs. Francis Barnett, Yardley, Are Honored at Affair

TRANSFERRED TO PHILA.

YARDLEY, Mar. 1.—The farewell banquet in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. Francis C. Barnett, who left on Wednesday for Philadelphia, where the Rev. Barnett has accepted a new post, was held in St. Andrew's Parish House Tuesday evening. The dinner was a community affair, with all the organizations represented.

The dinner was served by the members of Mrs. Robert C. Belleville's Sunday School class: Eleanor Caffey, Marion Scott, Betty Jean Garlits, Isabelle Stackhouse, and Cleone Kauffman. They were assisted by the Servers Guild: Robert Bebbington, George Garlits, Paul Brickelmaier, Donald Clemens, Archie Colclough and Albert Vander Meer, Jr.

During the dinner, Alan J. Quinn lead the gathering in singing, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clifford Nelson and Fred Cook, cornet. Following the singing of the national anthem, Robert C. Belleville, 3rd, who served as toastmaster, introduced Mrs. Algonson S. Cadwallader, president of the Yardley Civic Club, who paid tribute to the Rev. Barnett. Harry K. Ambler, a vestryman of the St. Andrew's parish, spoke of Mr. Barnett's work in the parish. William Welch, past commander of Yardley Post, American Legion, then presented the Rev. Barnett with the emblem of the past commander. Donald Clemens, of the Yardley Boy Scouts, introduced Skipper William Whitehead, who read a tribute to Rev. Barnett, from the Scout organization. James E. Groome spoke a word of appreciation in behalf of the many organizations with which Rev. Barnett was associated.

Mr. Belleville then presented Mr. and Mrs. Barnett with a studio couch, the gift of their many friends who attended the meeting. Mrs. Barnett and Mr. Barnett each spoke a few words of appreciation. The entertainment of the evening was opened by two duets, "Out of the Dusk to You" and "Auld Lang Syne" sung by Miss Lillian Van Artsdalen and Mrs. Alan Quinn, accompanied on the piano by Miss Hilda Van Artsdalen. The Yardley Girl Scout Troop presented a short stunt, "Sofa-Pillio" in which the following took part: Betty Fetter, Madlynne Nolan, Mary Miller, Marion Hunt, Janet Gilmore. . . GIVE JAIL SENTENCES TO RIEGELSVILLE RIOTERS

Ficca Put On Parole For A Two-Year Period By Judge

ONE MAN WAS KILLED

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 1.—Judge Calvin S. Boyer yesterday sentenced five Philadelphia rioters charged with riot and assault and battery in connection with the killing of James Donegan, Philadelphia, in a Riegelsville restaurant brawl on Sunday night, August 26, 1934.

The Philadelphians were returning home from a picnic north of Easton and stopped at the restaurant, demanding drinks from the proprietors, George Koury and his son, Habo Koury. George Koury fired in self-defense during the brawl and Donegan was fatally injured. Koury and his son went free after the grand jury had ignored the bills against them.

Those sentenced were as follows: Joseph McCarron, 32, riot, directed to pay one-seventh of the costs and to serve one to three years in the Bucks County Prison.

William Haigh, 36, riot, pay one-seventh of the costs and four months to two years in Bucks County Prison. William Wallace, riot, directed to pay one-seventh of the costs and to serve three months to two years in the Bucks County Prison.

John Hines, 39, riot, sentenced to pay one-seventh of the costs and to serve two months to two years in the Bucks County Prison.

John Ficca, 32, sentence suspended on condition he pay one-seventh of costs and be placed on parole for two years.

GANGSTERS' TRIAL CONTINUES AS CONDITION OF BRISTOL MAN SERVING AS JUROR IMPROVES; DEFENSE OPENS FIGHT FOR WILEY AND FARRELL

ADMIT CONFESSION OF FARRELL INTO WEISS MURDER CASE

Statement Alleged to Have Been Made by Man Now On Trial

THE TEXT IS GIVEN

Describes in Detail Movement of Gang Into Torredale Manor

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 1.—Martin Farrell's purported confession of his part in the murder of William (Big Nose) Weiss was put in evidence late yesterday afternoon.

The text of Farrell's statement follows:

"I, Martin Farrell, do make the following statement of my free will and accord, without threats or promises of immunity and with full knowledge that the same may be used against me in court.

"On or about October 26, 1934, I and several others went to the home of William Weiss for the purpose of shaking him down. We left the house on Walnut street and went down some road until we got to Weiss' house—that is, Babs Wiley, George Legenza (Polack Joe), Bob Mais and me.

"We went out some road and we got out to Weiss' house at 10.30 at night. It was early yet and in about 25 minutes Weiss pulled up in his machine and when he pulled up and put it in the garage Mais came up with a machine and with a shotgun in the machine.

"There was me, Babs and the Polack (Legenza) in the garage. "The Polack was standing here and I was in the corner. When he came in and got out of the machine the Polack went over and hit him with the butt of a gun.

"When they were carrying Weiss out he thought it was the law shaking him down for dope. He got hit again and the stuff dropped out of his hand and I was picking it up. He said: 'Let me do away with this junk and I'll pay.' He went in the machine and I got in the front. The Polack hit Weiss twice. Then Polack said: 'You —, many a poor soul you killed. I never killed anybody.'

"There was no more conversation until we got to the house on Walnut street. They took him in and put him upstairs in a little room. He stayed in the little room and it was cold and I threw the coat over his feet. "We were staying there talking to him, the four of us, and he said, 'I know who is in back of this.' He said Bob Mais was. Bob came in and said, 'Hello.' He said: 'What the h— do you have to do this for? Bob told him that many a person he had killed and 'you know I know it.'

"So he said to Bob: 'You sat in my office many a day. If you wanted anything you were welcome to it.' Bob said: 'If I went up in your office you know I'd be out in some road now.'

"Bob said: 'We'll take care of you.' Polack said: 'Take care. Take care h—.'

"He said: 'Is your life worth $100,000?' Weiss laughed at him. He said they had that money one time but no more.

"I went downstairs and came back in about half an hour. Bob was sitting there with a quart bottle of whiskey, drinking with Weiss. Wiley said to me: 'Look at that crazy monkey in there with a cannon,' meaning Mais was drunk in there. I said 'Why don't you get out?'

"Weiss said: 'Have you got anything I can smoke with? Have you got an outfit?' I said 'I don't use it. I've never smoked,' and he said 'I've been smoking eight or ten pills a day.' "He told me it costs $25 a day to smoke a pipe. I asked him about the effect and he said the same way as you like liquor I like this. I told him I like beer. I told him that I can take it or leave it alone and he said 'I crave this just like you crave beer.'

"I was sitting there and talking to him about the dope and he said: 'Has anybody notified my wife?' and I said 'Yes.' When George came in he said, 'How are you going?' He said, 'You don't like me to do?' and he said 'No.'

"They started arguing and I said 'What is the use of arguing now, the people in the next house will hear us.' He said, 'All right, I won't say any more.' He wanted a smoke and I said: 'I'll give you a shot of booze.' "Weiss was at the house on Walnut street for six or seven days. Beside myself there were three others there—Babs, Mais and Polack Joe. Beatrice Wilkerson didn't know who was up there and never visited him and never cooked for him.

"Polack Joe brought up the food to him. Coffey and Eckert never saw him. After he was there six or seven days we took him from the room and put him in another room. It was cold and . . . Continued on Page Six

William Warner Sufficiently Recovers from Heart Attack and Takes His Place in Jury Box — Alleged Confession of Farrell Admitted in Evidence Late Yesterday Afternoon

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 1.—The trial of Frank Wiley and Martin Farrell for the kidnap-murder of William (Big Nose) Weiss, big-time racketeer, continued as scheduled today after it had been determined that one of the jurors stricken with a heart attack last night, had improved.

The stricken juror, William Warner, Bristol garage proprietor, was improved this morning and felt able to continue with his duties as a juror.

Warner suffered his attack shortly after the Commonwealth had rested its case at 4.50 yesterday afternoon. He was removed to the Doylestown Hospital and Dr. Allen H. Moore was summoned. Dr. Moore visited the patient twice during the night and Mrs. Warner was notified.

For a time a mistrial was threatened and the fate of the trial hung in the balance. Judges Boyer and Keller indicated that the case could not proceed with only eleven jurors. It was planned to call a postponement for today providing Warner's condition did not improve.

Farrell and Wiley today launched their fight to escape death in the electric chair for the brutal murder of Weiss, kidnapped Philadelphia underworld chieftain.

The defense opened its case this morning shortly after District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn had announced to Judge Calvin S. Boyer and a jury of ten men and two women: "The Commonwealth rests."

Governor Earle Accepts Invitation To Dinner Here

Bristol high school auditorium will be the scene of a Jackson Day dinner on March 14th. It is expected that Governor Earle will be present.

The affair is being arranged by the Bucks County League of Democratic Clubs and will be a testimonial to Dr. John A. Flood, chairman of the Bucks County committee.

"It is through Dr. Flood's untiring efforts that the workers of the Democratic party have been organized in Bucks County," states those having the arrangements for the dinner in charge.

The invited guests who have accepted are: Hon. George H. Earle, Governor of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Earle; Hon. Joseph P. Guffy, United States Senator; Hon. Oliver W. Frey, Congressman from 9th District, Everett Kent, Esq.; Warren Van Dyke, Secretary of State Highways; Owen B. Hunt, Insurance Commissioner; Ralph M. Bashore, Secretary of Forests and Waters; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rainey; Mr. Wendell P. C. Morgenthaler; Norman Fitzgerald, Esq.

The committee in charge wishes to announce the last day to secure tickets will be March 11th. The banquet will be served by a caterer of Philadelphia.

SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

Joseph Moss, 528 Locust street, who was injured Tuesday evening when the automobile he was operating and another machine collided, is slightly improved, it was stated at Harriman Hospital this morning.

TO CONDUCT SERVICE

The members of Camp 89, P. O. of A., are asked to meet this evening at 8.15 at the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, to conduct service for their late sister, Mrs. Adam P. Smith.

CARD PARTY TONIGHT

The card party sponsored by the Edgely Braves, at Dick Hall, tonight, will include many useful and attractive prizes. Co-operation is solicited.

1932—Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped from home at Hopewell, N. J.

1933—Charles Boettger II, Denver, released by abductors after payment of $50,000.

Francis Wiley took the witness stand to deny he had any part in the cold-blooded murder of Weiss.

But Wiley readily admitted that he participated in the abduction of the gang chieftain in front of his palatial Overbrook Manor home last October 26th.

Wiley mounted the stand as the first witness for the defense shortly after the fifth day began in the trial of himself and his brother-in-law, Martin J. Farrell, for the Weiss murder.

Wiley, who, together with Farrell, "teamed up" with the once notorious Mais-Ligenza band of desperadoes shortly after they escaped from the Eastern Penitentiary through a sewer last September, recounted in detail the story of the Weiss kidnapping and told of the racketeer's "last ride" when he was murdered and his body thrown into the icy waters of the Nesheaminy Creek.

Defense testimony began immediately after defense counsel Webster S. Achey delivered his opening address to the jury, asserting that the late Robert "Killer" Mais and Walter Legenza, co-leaders of the defunct tri-state mob, planned the Weiss kidnapping, and Legenza murdered the victim to avenge the killing of an underworld pal in Pittsburgh.

Wiley testified he was not acquainted with Weiss until he was kidnapped. He said he first heard Weiss' name mentioned in the gang's Torredale Manor hide-out when Robert J. Eckert, who is also under indictment for the murder and has turned State's evidence, told the assembled mobsters that the Philadelphia racketeer was "loopy" with money.

It was then that Mais and Legenza, with Eckert's helpful information, plotted the Weiss kidnapping, Wiley said.

Wiley denied Eckert's previous testimony that he, Wiley, had drawn up a map of the route to be taken from Torredale Manor to Weiss' home in Overbrook Manor. Wiley said that "Legenza once threatened to kill Eckert for failing to show up one night at the Torredale Manor bungalow."

Describing the Weiss abduction, Wiley related that Eckert started out on the night of October

ADVENTURE AT SEVENTY

Once more the question arises as to when life begins. It is inspired this time by news about Sven Hedin. This explorer of the remotest places of the world is 70 years old, yet he reports that his recently completed journey through Central Asia's immense deserts was "the most adventurous and sensational trip of my entire life." Is it possible that our ideas once more must be adjusted, this time to encompass the proposition that adventurous life begins at 70?

When an explorer of Sven Hedin's long and wide experience calls a journey the "most adventurous and sensational trip" of his life, one may be sure that Hedin's journey through Chinese Turkestan equalled the best of movie thrillers from which the average man gets adventure vicariously. He was kidnapped by Mongols, and his party was frequently attacked by hostile tribesmen. Still, Hedin this time is the advocate as well as the explorer; his enthusiasm over his journey may come in part at least from the fact that he hopes to see motor highways built through Turkestan and disappearing rivers harnessed and thus made to bring Central Asia into bloom again.

Great areas there, now deserts, once sustained millions of people. Marco Polo found Turkestan a flourishing country, with a prosperous agricultural population as well as several cities noted as centers of Mohammedan culture, when he journeyed to China, some 600 years ago. Sven Hedin found deep wide rivers, with no outlet, "going to waste on desert sands." Gravitational canals, he says, would distribute the water now wasted and restore the deserts to their old time fertility.

But irrigation is not the only dream which Mr. Hedin entertains for Central Asia, whose barren wastes he has been exploring and mapping for the Chinese government. He seems most interested, perhaps, in the government's plan for constructing motor roads through Chinese Turkestan. And it is a plan to awaken one's imagination. Motor buses and trucks and private cars operating over routes where great caravans used to ply between Europe and Cathay.

The motor vehicle may never quite complete the task of making the world kin, but perhaps it even now is doing more than we know to make the world aware of its consanguinity.

SOAP IN RUSSIA

The progress of the Russian moujik toward cleanliness brings a burlesque of delight from Joseph Stalin, who estimates that this year's output of soap in the U. S. S. R. will be 347,000 tons, an increase of 67 per cent. over 1934.

This means that if production proceeds according to plan, each Russian will be entitled to four pounds of soap with which to wash his features and his clothes. This compares with an American consumption of 48 pounds per individual per annum.

It also means that this year each Russian will be one-twelfth as clean as each American, instead of one-nineteenth.

Today, however, Mr. Barnum would keep track of the soap birthrate on a split second watch, HOLLYWOOD—What do you think? Francis Lederer is studying singing. And seriously. The versatile Czech—he sculpts, lectures on "World Peace" etc.—has been taking lessons for several months from Otto Morando, the same who is making Franchot Tone into a basso and Jean Crawford into a very clever singer of popular numbers.

Franchot Tone

Lederer is said to be the most diligent of pupils. His voice, of course, has always been pleasant—good enough to get him by in British and German companies of "The Cat and the Fiddle." But, then, he had talked his songs.

A persistent tease, Katharine Hepburn is driving Director Philip Moeller pretty nearly crazy. If any difference of opinion comes up on the "Break of Hearts" set, she simply tells Moeller: "I think you had better go to the country."

It seems a few years ago, Kate, then a raw and eager youngster beating at the gates of Broadway, hit Moeller for a job.

The grade of the Theater Guild looked her over and advised: "I think you should go back to the country (fine way to talk about Hartford) and stay there. You have such beautiful rosy cheeks. The grime of the city might spoil them."

Poor guy. He'll never hear the last of that.

What famous foreign actress has a new romantic interest, and one that is causing plenty of concern in two big studios?

Good old Bill Fields, the only actor who plays himself on the screen (or is it vice versa) practically broke up a recent preview post mortem.

The picture was a supposedly serious offering from another studio, but the preview audience had developed unexpected levity during the several love scenes.

Afterwards, in the lobby, the wise guys promptly went to work.

"We'll sure have to take out those two love scenes," someone exclaimed, "the audience laughed."

Bill, who'd been beating on everyone but bearing very little suddenly froze into a frown.

"Humph! Humph!" he sounded off. "What's this? What's this? You're going to take out a couple of laughs?"

Fred Keating manages a rueful grin, but it's tough, that bit of cutting in "The Captain Hates the Sea." When this hard luck picture was being made, Fred, with a temperature of 102, took his life in his hands to make a dive into the ocean for a punch action shot. He did it voluntarily because the film had been delayed so often, and he didn't make anything of the incident.

The payoff, though, was this. When he saw the picture, the whole thing had been cut to a scarcely identifiable flash.

HOLLYWOOD TICKER-TAPE—

This department seems to have had it straight about Loretta Young and George Brent.

They were at the Trocadero together the other night. . . . And their pals watch this one. . . . Paul Ames arrives here in April and will stay all summer.

Both he and June Knight like the late spots and Hollywood is curious about their first meeting. . . . Talk about attractions. A small town theater in Georgia advertised: "Today see 'The Liver of a Bengal Lancer'". . . . Biggest surprise out here has been the Agua Caliente boom since repeal. . . . Bill Powell finally moves into his house in March. Wasn't it supposed to be finished last summer? . . . Madeline Fields, Carole Lombard's secretary, has lost 40 pounds. . . . Mae West is a hunch gambler. At Santa Anita recently a jockey named Jack Westrope rode several horses. . . . Mae backed him and collected plenty.

The British film exhibitors consider "The Man Who Knew Too Much" as the best English movie of the year. Leslie Banks, Edna Best and Peter Lorre are in it. . . . And will somebody please tell Charles and Wesley Ruggles where they were born. The birth certificates should be in the Los Angeles records, but Charlie and Wesley can't find them.

SYNOPSIS

Jasper Ingram, wealthy promoter, takes his secretary, lovely Cathleen McCarthy to his "Grangelands" estate so he can transact business while attending the charity garden party given by his wife, Laura. Cathleen, the sole support of a large family, is fascinated by the surrounding luxury and wishes she could attend the party. Marian Alspaugh, the gold-digging wife of Homer Alspaugh, Ingram's confidential secretary, is cigarette girl at the fête. She flirts with the Marques d'Alhues, Mrs. Ingram's special guest. Seward, Ingram's son, is infatuated with Arline Martin, an actress, but the ruthless Arline—realizing the senior Ingram could be more helpful in furthering her career—tries to impress the latter. Later, he calls at her apartment to listen to the reading of a play, the success of which means the arrival of herself and her author—the man she really loves. Failing to interest Ingram in the play, Arline tries to win him over by flirting boldly with him just as Seward arrives. The boy leaves in anger.

CHAPTER IX

He went to his club and had a plunge in the pool. That, and a couple of drinks from a bottle in his locker, gave him an appetite, so he dropped in at Tony's, where both the food and drink were good, and sat at a small table near the bar.

Some fellow he had passed on the way in raised a hand and nodded to him. He returned the salutation curtly; but—who was the man? Presently he identified him as one of his father's self-satisfied yes-men, a bird named Aldrich or something like that. Celebrating, had a girl with him, not his wife either. That pest he had seen at the garden-party was his wife.

Seward was disgusted. Same situation everywhere—beautiful girl, beaming at an old punt for what she could get out of him. But how could any girl like this Aldrich?—Alspaugh, that was the name. Yet there she was chattering and smiling and pretending she was having the time of her life.

Seward had an idea he'd seen the girl before sometime, but he couldn't remember where. Anyway, Alspaugh was a good picker. Of course at his age, he would go for somebody young and fresh. You didn't often see a girl with a prettier complexion. Made all the other women in the room look shriveled, pasty. She had other charms, too; her eyes, even at this distance, sparkled blue fire; a lovely soft shadow moulded the round chin; shapely shoulders, and a gallant carriage of the head. Then he noticed, with a curious sense of relief, that she was the only woman in the room not smoking.

At that he played with a sudden impulse to go over and join them. He was the boss's son, so Alspaugh wouldn't object. Before he could act on the inclination, they got up and went out. Now he would never see her again. What the hell! Girls were all alike. They only brought you grief.

A little before noon the next day, Jasper Ingram called up Grangelands and asked to speak to Mr. Seward.

"Do you wish me to wake him, sir?" the butler asked. "He came in late and was looking—very tired then, sir."

Jasper hesitated. To be jerked from sleep after a night out was what the boy deserved, but why be brutal. "Don town should foster this sort of repute. More specifically, it is up to the merchants of Perkasee to keep their business before the people by offering stores as well equipped and as well stocked as are those of their competitor and to let the consumers know about their offerings through the most effective channels.

Mr. Sanborn sounded a distinct warning against penurious use of the newspaper, which is much more than a medium for the transmission of advertising messages of merchants.

"The newspaper is the answer to the hunger of the public for news. It is valuable because it is desired on the part of those who read it—desired to the extent that they pay real money for the privilege of reading it.

He declared that a good town must have a strong bank and a good newspaper and he regards the latter of the greater importance. At the same time he invited his hearers to compare towns without a newspaper with their own town and see what he means when he stresses the importance of a newspaper to a community.

"You will try all sorts of advertising plans and schemes," he declared. "Some will bring fair results, some will bring none. But, whatever you do, refrain for your own protection from starving your local newspaper. It is the backbone of your community and the rule is fixed: The better the newspaper the better the town."

H. J. Palmer, chairman of the Better Housing project in Perkasee, also spoke. He stressed the widespread benefit of the dollar, once it is taken from the bank. A survey of conditions made in Perkasee recently showed that a spent dollar passed through sixteen hands in the community before it found its way back to the bank again. For this reason, he said, Perkaseians do more good for the community by spending than is the case elsewhere, since the national average is eight to ten persons handling the dollar after it is spent.

Gangsters' Trial Continues As Juror's Health Improves

Captain "Shokey" Malone, Philadelphia Detective Bureau, first witness Thursday afternoon, testified that he arrested Wiley December 14, in a 6th street house, Philadelphia.

"I arrested Farrell in New York on Jan. 17, 1935, in Lexington Hotel, New York City," Malone said. "Edward Gale was in the room at the time. Farrell was very drunk and Gale was under the influence too."

"I heard Farrell ask Gale—" and then the defense objected.

"Gale had a southern accent and Farrell could easily be distinguished from Gale," the well known Philadelphia detective continued.

Malone, captor of Farrell and Gale (charged in New York now with being an accessory in harboring a criminal), testified that he listened through a key-hole in the Lexington Hotel to Farrell's conversation with Gale.

"I heard Farrell say he had tied a Jew—son-of-a—up and tossed him overboard myself," Captain Malone said.

"After talking with Farrell after his arrest he joked and talked with me on the way to Phila." Malone continued.

"He admitted that he was Martin Farrell and was the man who had gotten away from Wayne Junction station and that he was the man who was shot in the shoulder at the station by the police."

"I had a conversation with Farrell on Bristol Pike Jan. 21 near a bridge as to where he disposed of Weiss' body. He walked up and down the bridge, pointing into the water, the Neshaminy Creek, the center of the creek."

"The next day, Jan. 22, I talked with Farrell on the bridge across Neshaminy Creek along State Road."

"A body was in the boat and Farrell said: 'Yes, that is Weiss, he is clothed in the same clothes that he wore when I dumped him there.'"

"At the Torresdale Manor bungalow, Farrell told me that they had Weiss on the floor and a bed covering over the body. He said that Weiss was then driven near a bridge where he heard two shots fired. Farrell and Mais were in the front seat, he told me."

Cross-examination of Captain Malone by Betz, Farrell's attorney, then opened.

"How do you know that Gale and Farrell were the only ones in room 425 at Lexington Hotel when you were in room 424?" Betz asked.

"I saw two figures distinctly in the room," Malone answered.

The Philadelphia detective was not in the least bit confused by Betz's meagre attack on his testimony.

"Yes, I recall a building along the State Road, where Farrell said was the spot where he heard the two shots fired," Malone continued in answer to Betz's cross-examination.

The defense did not risk cross-examining Malone.

Detective Peltz, recalled by State, said that on the night of Jan. 22, 1935, he had Farrell under questioning at the Torresdale Manor house.

"Farrell told me that Mais said to Legenza, 'Come on, let's take Weiss out and croak him,'" Peltz testified.

"He told me that they wrapped Weiss in a small blanket and put him in a car and drove him to the bridge where he dumped him off and Mais and Legenza said, 'there is another bumped off.'"

Lieut. Thomas McGorian, of the Bureau of Detectives testified that he first met Farrell in New York on Jan. 19.

"In New York City on January 21, Farrell gave me a written statement," McGorian testified.

The statement No. 18, Farrell's statement was then offered in evidence by the Commonwealth.

Lieut. McGorian testified the Farrell statement was obtained on Jan. 21 in New York City in the Dept. of Justice headquarters.

"The statement was made at one o'clock in the morning. Farrell's physical condition was O. K.," McGorian said. "There were no marks on his body. He was lying down. I cannot say whether any force was used on Farrell before I talked with him."

"Farrell read the statement and then signed it."

"Farrell refused to make a statement on several occasions," Lieutenant McGorian continued.

"Isn't it true that Farrell said to you that he had been so badly beaten by the officers that his kidneys were badly injured?"

"No, he never said that."

"Didn't he tell you that they had given him alcohol baths?"

"No, sir, he did not."

Lieutenant McGorian said that Farrell had leg chains on and was lying on his stomach on a table."

"I do not know whether Dept. of Justice Agents were working on Farrell or not," McGorian continued. "The agents were with him at all time."

"Farrell confessed because Mais and Legenza had confessed and Farrell finally said, 'well, I might as well confess too.'"

"I told Farrell that Mais and Legenza had confessed and Farrell followed suit, because they had implicated him."

J. L. Fallon, special Agent of the U. S. Department of Justice, testified that he saw Farrell in their New York office on Jan. 18 and that he saw him every hour or so. The witness then identified the statement made by Farrell in his presence, and others, including Lieutenant Sullivan and Lieutenant McGorian. He said there were four or five agents who questioned Farrell.

"Farrell told me on several occasions that he would consider making a statement," Fallon continued. "I was on 53-hour duty at the offices of the Department of Justice but I showed Farrell nothing but kindness."

"Farrell slept about 10 or 15 hours during the 3 days we had him. He slept on the table with the iron cuffs on his ankles. The policy of the Department of Justice is not to use any force to get statements. We use kindness."

"No, I never heard Farrell ask for a doctor."

Lieutenant Walter J. Sullivan, of New York City Police Department, testified that he was with Captain Malone in Hotel Lexington, New York, and met Farrell in the Department of Justice headquarters at 1.30 a. m., Jan. 21, 1935, and saw Farrell make a statement to a stenographer.

Lieutenant McGorian was then recalled to the stand to read Farrell's statement.

The Court instructed the jury that the statement was admitted only so far as it pertained to Farrell and not to Wiley.

Lieutenant McGorian, recalled by the State, said that he brought Farrell home from New York when they stopped on the bridge where Weiss was tossed off and that Farrell pointed and said, 'that is where we tossed him.'"

"Weiss was identified by Farrell as he was being pulled out of the Neshaminy Creek," Lieutenant McGorian continued. "Weiss said 'yes, that's the same way we left him.'"

"I talked to Farrell many times about division of the money, but he was never quite sure. He said that he got $1900 and so did Mais, Legenza and Wiley get the same amount."

Bucks County Detective Antonio Russo, of Bristol, testified that Eckert showed him the spot along Poquesing Creek, at Torresdale, where a revolver was found on February 12. The location was pointed out by Eckert in the presence of Russo and others who searched for the weapon.

At this point, District Attorney Eastburn then read the criminal records of Farrell and Wiley to the jury, for the jury's consideration in case the defendants are found guilty of the murder of Weiss. The charges and convictions included scores of crimes, including escape from the Eastern Penitentiary.

Wiley was first committed to the Huntingdon Reformatory and advanced to county jails and later to the penitentiary. Robbery, burglary and other crimes blacken the record of the two defendants.

The Commonwealth rested its case Thursday afternoon at 4.50.

Janet Smith, Eleanor Daugherty, Edith Miller, Louise Thompson, Laura Cadwallader and Peggy Mackey, a quartette, Fred Cook, Jack Rembe, James Rowland and Edward G. of the Young People's organization favored with two selections, one of which was written for the occasion as a tribute to the Barnetts. Robert C. Belleville sang "The Hills of Home," "Because" and "On the Road to Mandalay," and Fred Cook rendered a cornet solo, "The Isle of Capree." Mrs. Clifford Nelson and Mr. Belleville sang "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton." As a special request number, Michael Derrick gave an imitation of Amos and Andy.

The Yardley Civic Club presented a one act play, "When the Wife's Away." The cast included: George Brown, Mrs. Robert C. Belleville, 3rd, Elmer Duerr, Mrs. Fred Cook, Miss Marion Smith, and Karl Rembe. The play was coached by Mrs. A. B. Kaufman, assisted by Miss Helen W. Leedom, Mrs. A. S. Cadwallader, and Mrs. Lura R. Ross.

The entire affair was arranged by Victor J. Humbrecht with the assistance of the following committee: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ambler, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Arnel, Mrs. Lucy A. Harper, Mrs. A. J. Cadwallader, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Bebbington, Donald Clemens, Sr., Karl Rembe, Mrs. Houghton Smith, James E. Groome, Harry L. Clark, George P. Brown, Mrs. Ruth Fetter, and Miss Margaret Doyle and Mrs. Robert C. Belleville, 3rd.

Miss Nora Leech, Germantown, was a Saturday guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Brooks, 204 Jefferson avenue.

that if the Senate refused to pass his resolution Republicans who wanted to remain such "can not and will not remain Republicans."

The speeches of Prince and McClure and the other senators who felt called upon to speak their minds on the resolution against the Delaware solon filled 10½ pages in the quaint legislative journal. . . . It costs $5.50 a page to print the journal. . . . So it cost only $57.25 to record their thoughts for posterity. . . . In those pages are some of the most acrimonious and bitter words in the English language. . . . Paragraph after paragraph of legal citations offered by Sen. George L. Reed, Dauphin, in McClure's defense. . . . and some of the most impassioned oratory ever uttered in legislative halls.

Natural science students will find a scholarly lecture on the life of the eel in the Journal. . . . The discourse, with some emphasis on the sex life of the eel, was delivered by pontifical Rep. Harvey Surface during a debate on the sanctity of eel chutes late one afternoon.

Although Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence, who also is Secretary of the Commonwealth, frequently can be seen leaning over the railing on the minority wing of the Senate, he was not visible the night the showdown was staged on the Prince resolution. . . . He was on hand a short time later, however. . . . Senators Charles E. Miller, Northumberland, and Charles E. Sones, Lycoming, the Democrats who deserted their party, were understood to have been given the political "cold shoulder" . . . Democrats in those counties may have a hard time crashing the patronage gate.

GENERAL ELECTRIC
spent a million dollars
TO MODERNIZE
ELECTRIC COOKERY

faster and far more economical!!

NOW an entire meal can be cooked as quickly and as cheaply on an electric range as by any other method. Calrod, the new General Electric high-speed heating unit developed by the great General Electric research laboratories, has added modern speed and new economy to electric cookery.

Electric cookery is not only incomparably cleaner, cooler and more healthful, but it gives a finer flavor to all meats and vegetables—a new taste-thrill to every meal. With a General Electric range less kitchen time is required. Cooking or baking failures are eliminated. See a demonstration and you will know why more than a million homes now use electric cookery.

Modernize your kitchen! There is a new Calrod-equipped model and size General Electric automatic electric range to exactly meet your requirements.

The new General Electric Marquis. Modern flat-top design. Fully automatic, Calrod equipped.

Honest Aid!

IT WAS LINCOLN, wasn't it, who gave us that epigram about fooling some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time? Times have changed. Some people, today, can't be fooled at all.

They are the ones who buy thoughtfully and spend wisely. They are guided by the most up-to-the-minute news about products, prices and values. They read the advertisements in the daily paper.

Whether you're marketing for tonight's dinner, for a refrigerator or for a home—the most reliable guides are printed right here in this paper for you.

Make it a habit to shop at home, by newspaper, before you set out. It saves time . . . saves tiresome searching . . . and it saves real money.

BAKED FRANKFURTERS, SPAGHETTI COOKED BY MISS SCHNEIDER

Recipes used the third day by Miss Vera A. Schneider at the cooking school sponsored by the Bristol Courier:

Baked Frankfurters and Spaghetti
4 slices Felin's Gold Medal bacon
1 onion—chopped fine
1 lb. Felin's Frankfurters—cut in slices
2 cans tomato soup
½ package Krumm's spaghetti—cooked
1 green pepper
1 teaspoonful salt
dash of cayenne
dash of allspice
½ teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce
1 bay leaf—chopped
Cut bacon in small pieces and cook until crisp and brown. Add onion and cook until tender. Add the tomato soup, to which seasonings have been added and stir until it boils. Arrange layers of spaghetti, frankfurters and green pepper alternately until all are used. Pour sauce over all, cover and bake in a moderate (375 degree) oven for 30 minutes.

Chocolate Layer Cake With Seven Minute Frosting
½ cupful butter
2 cupfuls sugar

4 eggs—separated
1 cupful milk
2 2/3 cupfuls Ceresota not bleached flour
5 teaspoonfuls baking powder
½ teaspoonful salt
¼ squares unsweetened chocolate—melted
½ teaspoonful vanilla
Cream the butter and one cupful of sugar. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored and add to beaten egg yolks gradually, the remaining cupful of sugar. Combine the two mixtures. Sift flour, salt and baking powder and add to creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Mix well, and add the stiffly beaten egg white, the melted chocolate and the vanilla. Bake in three layers in 375 degree oven. Cover with seven minute frosting.

Seven Minute Frosting

2 egg whites
½ cupful superfine sugar
1 tablespoonful white corn syrup
5 tablespoonfuls cold water
½ teaspoonful vanilla
Combine all ingredients except vanilla in double boiler, and stir until mixed. Beat constantly with egg beater over boiling water until frosting is fluffy and holds shape—about seven minutes. Remove from double boiler and add vanilla.

Combine filling ingredients and stuff into steak. Secure with skewers. Broil ten minutes on each side, turning only once. Serve with grilled tomatoes on rounds of toast, potato chips and parsley.

Grilled Tomatoes

Cut three tomatoes in halves. Cover with bread crumbs, salt, pepper and a dash of sugar. Put a piece of butter on top of each tomato and broil until tomato is tender. Place on toast points. Garnish with parsley or watercress.

Orange Crumb Pie

16 Graham crackers—rolled fine
2 tablespoonfuls sugar
1/3 cupful melted butter
1 cupful orange pulp
1 cupful sliced bananas
sweetened whipped cream
Combine sugar, graham crackers and melted butter. Press on pie plate and bake in a moderately hot oven for ten minutes. When ready to serve add the orange pulp and bananas and cover with whipped cream. Garnish with choice slices of orange.

Macaroni and Spinach

5 ounces Krumm's elbow macaroni
1 cupful grated cheese
1 can spinach
1 1/2 cupfuls white sauce
buttered bread crumbs
salt and pepper to taste
Cook macaroni in salted water un-

It's the Performance that counts

● In buying any refrigerator always ask "How long will it last?" Performance means more in savings, more in convenience, more in protection to health than all other features combined.

You can have a General Electric Monitor Top in your home tomorrow and feel secure in the knowledge that you have performance protection. In addition to the standard one year warranty, the famous General Electric sealed-in-steel mechanism carries four more years protection for only $5—five years for only $1 a year! Hundreds of thousands of General Electric owners have had dependable, trouble-free refrigeration service day after day, month after month, for more than 5 years and today the sealed-in-steel mechanisms are as good as the day they were bought. The performance record of G-E refrigerators can be duplicated by no other refrigerator.

GENERAL ELECTRIC THE REFRIGERATOR THAT DEFIES TIME

G-E sealed-in-steel Monitor Tops in use in homes six and seven years have been cut apart at the General Electric Research Laboratories and found to be in such first class condition that it is impossible to place a limit on the years of service to be expected from this matchless refrigerator mechanism.

Don't wait another month to have the convenience and economy of a General Electric in your home. You can have one tomorrow. It will serve you for years and years. Waiting is actually wasting at least $8 to $10 a month. Users will tell you a General Electric means as much to them in winter as in summer.

HOLMES NOT IMPROVING

Washington, D. C., Mar. 1.—His ebbing strength buoyed by tent oxygen administered by a physician and two nurses who remained at his side during the night, Oliver Wendell Holmes, retired associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, had shown no improvement this morning in his fight against bronchial pneumonia. During the night the former "great liberal" of the High Tribunal was reported to be resting more comfortably than earlier in the day. He resigned from the bench three years ago and will be 94 years old next Friday.

Morrisville Fathers Enjoy Social Night

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 1.—Ladies Night which was observed here by the Morrisville Fathers' Association with an informal gathering of members, wives or lady friends, was one of the most enjoyable affairs ever held by this organization. More than 125 men and women attended and the affair was held in the high school gymnasium.

Following a few remarks by Neal Nolan, president of the organization, the program was begun. There was group singing led by Harry Plier, faculty director of the school band, and entertainment by a magician.

The real fun of the evening was the games in which all those present joined. This part of the program was directed by Alvin R. Pratt, a member of the School Board and an officer in the Fathers' Association. Following the games dancing was enjoyed for a short time.

Following the good time in the "gym" the party adjourned to the cafeteria where hot dogs, sauer kraut, rolls, cakes and coffee was served.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

During the period of the weekly meeting of Bristol Rotary Club in the Elks' home yesterday, Emil Metzger spoke on the present economic conditions. This address was followed by a discussion by members of the club.

"Polack Joe took care of all the letters. Me and Jim were the first to compromise on $12,000. Polack Joe wanted $25,000. Polack Joe asked Buck to meet him some place away up on the Willard road pike."

"You go up as far as 122 or 142 and then you see a sign on the tavern that says Schmidt's Beer. We waited, myself, Polack Joe and Mais, in the machine until 3 o'clock and they didn't show up. Mais said, 'I know how he is.'"

"We got back to the house and then Weiss said: 'What's the matter?' And we said we didn't see Buck. Weiss said Buck was afraid to go out on a lonely road—that there was some clique after him. He said he had been shot at around February. Weiss said, 'You can't blame Buck for not coming out.'"

"We were back in the house and I watched him for about three hours with Polack Joe. I went down and made a sandwich and had a bottle of ale and then went to sleep. I woke up in the morning and Polack Joe is getting up and Joe has my breakfast cooked. Then I went upstairs and changed with them."

"Babs said: 'I'm sorry I went into this thing. That guy's always drinking upstairs,' meaning Mais. I said, 'I feel the same way but now it looks bad.' Polack Joe asked me why I was standing around and then I went in and sat down with Polack Joe."

"Weiss started making arrangements and said: 'You fellows let me out and I'll show you how to get money.' Weiss said, 'I will make a contact for you. You know I've got good connections and can change the money for you.'"
